LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
BUREAU OF EDUCATION,
Washington, D. C., March 10, 1890.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith an English-Eskimo vocabulary of 11,318 words, and to recommend the publication of 10,000 copies as a hand-book for the Alaskan teachers.

The introductory note by Lieut. Commander Charles H. Stockton, of the U. S. S. Thetis, to whose intelligent foresight the preparation of the work is due, and to whom this Office is indebted for the gift of the manuscript, explains the sources of the material and the circumstances of the compilation.

The Bureau of Education being charged with the supervision of education in Alaska, I have come to appreciate the value of all means or appliances that will in any way promote a better understanding of, and an easier communication with, the native races of that Territory, and I therefore deem the acquisition of this vocabulary as exceedingly fortunate. It will be of great service not only to the teachers for whom it is primarily intended, but to officers of the Navy and of the Revenue Marine service, all Government officials in Alaska, committees of Congress visiting that country, and many others who for various reasons are interested in the study of the Eskimo language. I may add, as evidence for this statement, that the Superintendent of the Census has earnestly requested the publication of the vocabulary as an aid to the Census Office.

The expense of this publication will not be great, and may properly be charged to the fund for the "education of children in Alaska, without distinction of race."

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

W. T. HARRIS,
Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The U. S. S. Thetis was detailed by the Navy Department to cruise, during the summer and autumn of 1889, in the Behring Sea and Arctic Ocean, for the purpose of looking out for the whaling and commercial interests of the United States in those waters, and also for the purpose of assisting in the establishment of a house of refuge at Point Barrow, the most northerly point of our territory.

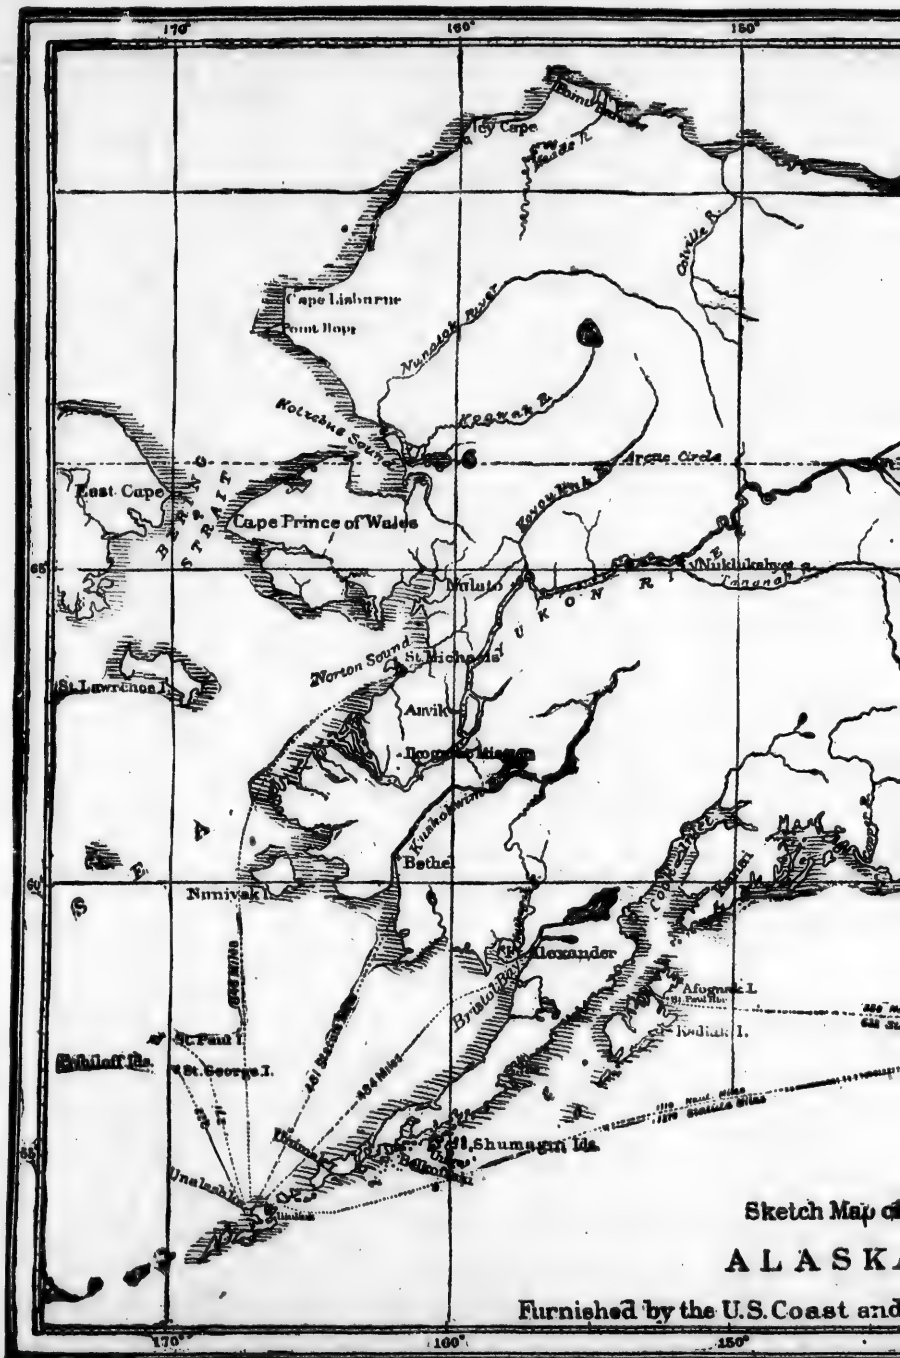

During this cruise, in order to make it as broad and useful as possible, several of the officers on board of the Thetis were directed to prepare reports upon subjects connected with the waters and regions visited by the ship, from their observation and from other reliable sources. Two reports were submitted to me upon the subject of the Eskimos of north-western Alaska; one on the ethnography of the Eskimos, by John W. Kelly, and the other an Eskimo vocabulary, prepared by Ensign Roger Wells, jr., almost entirely from information and material furnished by Mr. John W. Kelly, the interpreter of the ship. Mr. Kelly spent three winters among the north-western Eskimos, and has been engaged for seven years at various times in acquiring a knowledge of the language. The vocabulary is the largest in number of words that I know of, treating of the language of the Eskimos upon our Arctic coast. It has a short vocabulary of the American Eskimos who are settled upon the Asiatic side of Behring Strait, which, I think, will be found particularly interesting and valuable.

The Thetis had the good fortune during this summer of reaching as far east as Mackenzie Bay and as far west as Herald Island and Wrangell Land, thus leaving an honorable name for service among Arctic cruisers. It is to be hoped that the reports, memoranda, and other contributions secured through the ready co-operation of the officers of the ship will serve also to make a permanent and useful record of the cruise creditable to the ship, interesting to the general reader, and of value as contributions to our knowledge of the Territory of Alaska.

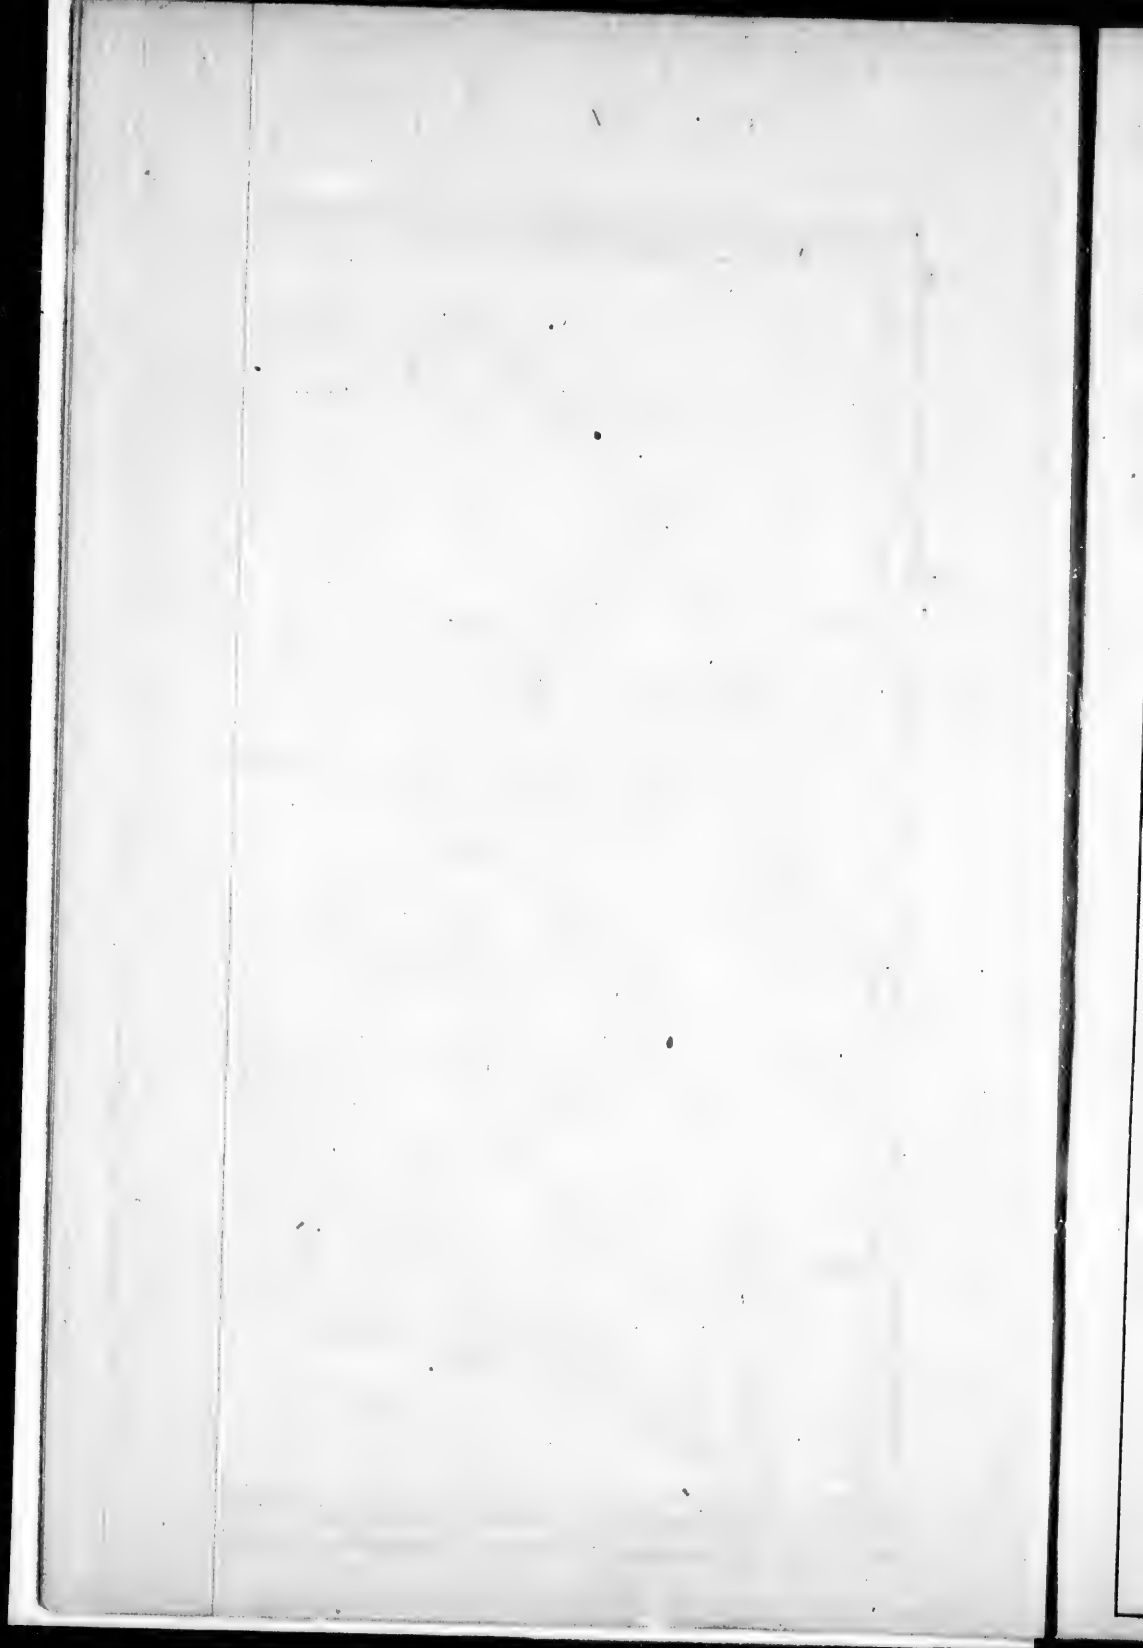

CHARLES H. STOCKTON,
Lieutenant Commander, United States Navy,
Commanding U. S. S. Thetis.

MEMORANDA CONCERNING THE ARCTIC ESKIMOS IN ALASKA AND SIBERIA.

By JOHN W. KELLY.

[Revised and edited by Sheldon Jackson, D. D., United States General Agent of Education in Alaska.]

The Eskimos on the Arctic coast of Alaska claim to be indigenous to the country in which they live; that they inhabited the mountainous region on the north side of Kotzebue Sound before the surface of the Arctic land was changed and before the northern portion rose from the sea. Their traditions assert that in the beginning the people had heads like ravens, with eyes on the upper part of their breasts, and all the world was wrapped in gloom, with no change of day or night. At that time there lived a powerful chieftain on top of the highest peak. Suspended in the roof of his hut were two balls, which were considered very precious, and were carefully guarded. One day, the chief being absent and the guards asleep, some children, who had long admired the beautiful balls, knocked them down with a stick. They rolled across the floor of the hut, through the door, and down the mountain side. The noise awakened the guards, who hurried out after the escaped treasure. The extraordinary beauty of the bounding balls attracted the attention of the people, who rushed after them. A wild struggle for their possession ensued, which ended in breaking them.

Light sprang from one and darkness from the other. These were mighty spirits. Both claimed dominion and neither would yield. At length a compromise was made, and they agreed to an alternate rule. This was the beginning of day and night. Their violent struggles for the mastery had so disturbed the world that the anatomy of the people and the surface of the earth were changed. Light being upon the earth, men began to catch whales in the sea and to carry the flesh and bones to their mountain home.

One family wandering over the country recently arisen from the sea came down upon what is now called Point Hope. Finding vegetation springing up and whales plentiful, they built a hut, and made it their permanent home. Years went on and the father and mother died. Some of the children had strayed away and others had returned to the home country, till only a brother and sister were left.

One day they quarreled, and he killed her. Ever after, when out hunting, her spirit would accost him from first one edible plant and then another. At each occurrence of the voice he would destroy the plant with a club. Following her from plant to plant he destroyed them all. She then took refuge in the sun, whose dazzling rays the murderer could not face. He then went to the moon, where with club in hand he could follow her up for all time.

The Eskimos were the only people in the world. Way back in the dim past some of them were carried away on the ice, and managed to live on seals and other animals they killed, until they reached an inhabited land a long distance north of Point Barrow. They remained there until winter, when they returned in safety to the main-land.

LOCATION.

Leaving the legendary and coming down to the present, we find the Eskimos occupying the whole Arctic coast of Alaska, together with a portion of the Siberian coast.

SIBERIAN ESKIMOS.

There are settlements of Eskimos at Cape Tchaplín (Indian Point), Plover Bay, and East Cape. How long they have been there and how much of the country they have occupied can only be conjectured. Those occupying St. Lawrence Island, Cape Tchaplín, and part of the shores of Plover Bay, on the main-land of Asia, opposite St. Lawrence Island, speak a dialect nearer like that of Point Barrow or the Mackenzie River than the dialects of the Diomedes or Kotzebue Sound. That the Eskimos of Asia have been there a great many years is a certainty. The Deermen people, whose principal support is domesticated reindeer, have gradually crowded out the Eskimos or Fishmen, and have almost absorbed them by assimilation. They wear no labrets, and in dress and tattooing are the same as the Deermen. That they have lived in underground houses is abundantly proved by the ruins at Cape Tchaplín of old huts which have been framed with whole jaws of whales. Now they live in huts above ground, covered with walrus hides. They are built in the same manner as those of the Deermen, who use a covering of reindeer robes. From the Deermen they have also learned to cremate their dead, instead of scattering the dead bodies over the plain, according to the custom of the American Eskimos. Like the American Eskimos, they deposit the personal property of the deceased at his grave. If he was a great hunter, they also erect a monument of reindeer antlers over his grave. Their songs and dances are to a certain extent the same as those of the Deermen, but their manner of living and their language coincide more with that of the people on the north coast of Alaska. At East Cape, Siberia, there is a trace of the Arctic Eskimos, but differing from their nearest Eskimo neighbors, the Diomedé people.

In the vicinity of East Cape there are a few ruins of underground houses, and a few Eskimo words are still used by the people. Twenty miles westward from Cape Tchaplín is Plover Bay, where both the Eskimo and Deermen language is spoken, but the Eskimo is on a rapid decline.

St. Marcos Bay, which lies between Plover Bay and Cape Tchaplín, is inhabited by Deermen; also the country between East Cape and Cape Tchaplín. In fact, the Deermen now have all the country from the Arctic to Cape Navarin and beyond, except the points named. Oomoojek, on Cape Tchaplín, is the Asiatic Eskimo metropolis. The principal industry is whaling, sealing, and walrusing.

The Oomoojek chief, Kohorra, is the wealthiest Eskimo in the northwest. In addition to large stores of guns, whisky, ammunition, and articles of trade, he possesses a large herd of tame reindeer.

ESKIMOS IN ARCTIC ALASKA.

KAVEA TRIBE.

The original home of the Kavea tribe was near the lakes east of Port Clarence. They love to boast of their former greatness. One old fellow, who is a philosopher, geographer, and seer among the Eskimos, made a map of his country of Kavea; although a little out of proportion it is an excellent one in its way. It contains all the mountains, streams, and settlements, with marks to indicate certain minerals. Some of these were afterwards located by personal observation. It includes East Cape and the Diomedes within the bounds of Kavea, which places, he says, were once peopled by the same natives. At the present day, however, the dialect of East Cape is different from both that of the Diomedes and Kavea. The Diomedes and Cape Prince of Wales people have a dialect which is more guttural and harder to understand than any other of the Eskimos.

The Kavea country is almost depopulated, owing to the scarcity of game, which has been killed off or driven away.

The country was once full of Arctic hare and marmots, both of which have been about exterminated. Reindeer have long since been driven away, but fish are still abundant in all the lakes and streams.

The remnants of the Kavea tribe are scattered over whole of Arctic Alaska. Wherever found they are impudent, energetic, and persevering. What few remain at home rival the Kinégans of Cape Prince of Wales in lawlessness. Nearly every year there is a report of from one to three being killed.

THE TIGARA MUTES.*

The Tigaras, who inhabit Point Hope and hunt over the hills immediately back of that point, claim that they once exercised control over all the country from Kotzebue Sound north to Icy Cape, and eastward as far as Deviation Peak, on the north side of the Kowak or Putnam River.

Point Hope, being favorably situated for whaling, sealing, and walrusing, with an unfailing supply of food for winter, soon became the centre of power. In the latter part of the eighteenth century, as near as can be determined, the Tigara village on Point Hope had a population of 2,000, with six council houses. At that time the growing tribe of Nooatoks began pressing to the southward and westward, and it was not long before they were masters of the Tigara country westward to the Kevalinye (Corwin Lagoon) between Cape Seppings and Cape Krusenstern. One summer, about the year 1800, a great land and boat fight took place between the Tigaras and the Nooatoks just below Cape Seppings, in which the Tigaras were overthrown and compelled to withdraw from all that part of the country.

They were left in possession of the Kookpak River, where reindeer pass on occasional years. So badly crushed were the Tigaras that they lost half of their population, which gradually led to the abandonment of all their outstanding villages, the people taking refuge at the capital place of Tigara (Point Hope). The sudden taking off of the leading men, the great whalers and skillful hunters, left the tribe badly demoralized and comparatively helpless.

Before an equilibrium was established half of the remaining population died of famine. Since then the population of the tribe has steadily declined.

They have often attacked parties of whalers who have been on shore after casks of water or driftwood for fuel. Four instances are mentioned: once when the natives were driven off with clubs; another time when they surrounded a boat's crew, pricked the men's throats with knives, stole their tobacco, and cut the buttons from their clothes; again, when they pursued the departing boats, caught hold of their painters, and tried to pull the boats ashore, which was frustrated by cutting the painter. Upon the last occasion, when they attacked a boat in force, the officer in charge stood them off with a whaler's cutting-spade, inflicting many wounds, but it is not known whether any were killed.

In the summer of 1837 a whaling station was established at Point Hope by a San Francisco firm. The natives, under the leadership of Owtonowrok, the Tigara chieftain, kept the station in a constant state of alarm by menaces and threats for more than a year. In June, 1839, the natives made friendly overtures of peace.

* Mutes, tribe or people.

Owtonowrok aspired to be a chief like Kohorra, of the Oomoojeks on Cape Tchaplín, Asia, of whom he had heard. In his efforts to become absolute master of his people he passed from tyranny to assassination. For trivial causes, such as losing something or failing to be prompt in paying tribute, he would sally forth on a shotgun expedition, and either hold the victim while one of his followers did the shooting, or shoot while some one else held the man; but usually he did the holding himself, as he was the most powerful man of his tribe. He became the head chief through defeating the old chief in a rough-and-tumble fight.

February 14, 1889, he was shot dead by two brothers, whom he had exiled, and who had returned for the purpose of killing him. During his life he killed five men and one woman. He inspired such terror that every year people left for distant hunting-grounds, till it seemed that a few more years of his reign would have seen Tigara depopulated.

Women take an active part in battle or assassinations by holding on to an enemy or otherwise impeding his movements. In executing an offensive movement the women have been noticed to get in the rear of an enemy to obstruct his retreat.

The Tigaras exchange arms and ammunition, obtained from whale-ships, with the Nooatoks and Kevalinyes for furs. Whale-oil and seal-skins are bartered for deer-skins and children. A child costs originally about one seal-skin bag of oil, or a suit of old clothes. If not resold they are brought up in the family purchasing them to do menial work as soon as able. As they grow up they are made to believe that their parents were bad people and that they would have died if they had not been taken in by their present owners. When grown they are free. Not knowing any other dialect or having any other home, they stay where they are and become recognized Tigaras. Owtonowrok, the chief, had a Nooatok boy, whose fidelity he afterwards rewarded by creating him chief, next in power to himself.

KINEGAN MUTES.

The nineteenth century has witnessed the rise and fall of the Kinegans of Cape Prince of Wales. A band of hypocrites and shylocks, possessing a large share of brazen effrontery, led on by what they believed to be invincible unutkoots (seers), they overran the country to the southward and eastward as far as the Selawik River. Taking the highlands for bearings, they sailed boldly across Kotzebue Sound from Cape Spanberg to Hotham Inlet and Cape Krusenstern, where they founded colonies, hunted reindeer, and plundered and scattered the habitations of other tribes.

They have a traditional story of having defeated and driven the Russians out of Kotzebue Sound. It is probable that they have reference to Beechy's English expedition, as there is a record that a surveying party of that expedition was attacked and lost in an encounter with the natives in 1827.

In 1868 a whale-boat's crew from a wrecked vessel was making its way southward to civilized settlements, when it fell in with a band of Cape Prince of Wales natives on the north side of Kotzebue Sound. Some of the natives held knives to the men's throats, while others robbed and stripped them of everything they had, even to their clothing. After suffering many hardships the whalers reached Point Hope, where they were finally rescued.

Every December moon 150 or 200 Cape Prince of Wales natives would go over to Kavea, before they impoverished it, on a tax-collecting expedition. Upon their arrival the whole population would be drawn up in line just outside the village, when the old men would beat drums, while two elegantly dressed women, springing into the open place between the two tribes, danced in their most graceful style. While the women were dancing two young men would dash into the arena armed with bows and arrows, dance stiff-legged, draw their bows, aim east, west, north, and south. The whole ceremony being one of submission and a declaration that they stood ready to defend themselves and visitors from enemies from all directions. The performance being over, huts and council houses were thrown open, and dancing, games, and theatricals were indulged in till the food became scarce, when the visitors departed.

Beginning about the year 1860, vessels have been fitted out at Honolulu and San Francisco for the purpose of trading in Arctic waters. These are careful not to be surprised or captured by the natives of Cape Prince of Wales.

Soon after the acquisition of Alaska by the United States (1867) these people captured and plundered a San Francisco trading vessel. Encouraged by this success, and having as their leader an unutkoot, whom the natives considered invulnerable, they seized and boarded a Hawaiian brig, commanded by George Gilly, a Bouin Islander. The natives drove the crew below, killing one man. The chief caught Gilly by the throat and began pressing him back, when Gilly drew a revolver, but was only jeered at by the chief; striking the chief over the head with it and loosening his hold he shot him dead. In the meantime the mate had come on deck with a rifle, but was seized by the second chief, and in the struggle for the gun both fell to the deck. Watching his opportunity the helmsman brained the native with a spare tiller. Gilly and the mate then took up positions at the ports in the forward part of the poop and opened fire on the natives, who swarmed on deck. Becoming panic-stricken, they fled into the rigging, and many sprang over the sides of the vessel, capsizing their canoes, and were drowned. Those that were left sought refuge under the top-gallant forecastle. When drawn out of their hiding places with long boat-hooks, they ran with drawn knives upon the crew and fought until knocked dead with capstan bars. Fifteen natives lay dead on deck. The number drowned is not known. This incident broke the power of the Kinégans.

The unutkoots, who claimed to be invulnerable, were found to be but ordinary men. The conquered tribes, denouncing them as "liars," "frauds," and "ashooruk oklah" (very bad), asserted their independence. Shotgun parties for the purpose of collecting tribute became obsolete.

The Kinégan colonists north of Kotzebue Sound and elsewhere, finding their locations too dangerous, returned to their own region. The Kinégans still hold the little Diomede, and the coast-line between Cape Prince of Wales and Cape Spanberg, but the population has steadily declined, and within the last three years families have begun to migrate northward, and now they are to be found scattered along the coast as far north as Point Belcher.

COLONIES OF OUTLAWS.

On the south side of the headland just below St. Lawrence Bay, on the Siberian coast, is a colony of murderers gathered from different settlements on the Asiatic shores of the Behring Sea, where they dwell unmolested by surrounding tribes.

In Eskimo Alaska there is not only a settlement, but a considerable tribe of Arctic Ishmaelites who are called Kevalinyes, whose home lies between the Tigaras and the Nooatoks. They claim allegiance to the Nooatoks and ought to be classed under that head, but are spoken of here under a separate heading on account of their peculiarities. The larger number of these people are of Nooatok origin, re-enforced by desperadoes from Cape Prince of Wales, Kavea, and Point Hope.

They have been continually encroaching on the hunting-grounds of the Tigaras, who have repeatedly sent them word to pack up and move or be cleaned out. To these threats no attention has been paid.

Within the last three years they have even extended their ground to the shores of the Arctic, appropriating the northern portion of the Tigara hunting-ground, which lies south of the Kookpovoros at Point Lay. The Eskimos are given to boasting of their intentions. In most instances offensive movements are thus anticipated. Whenever the Tigaras have started out on a shot-gun adjustment expedition, the Kevalinyes have had time to call in a sufficient number of their people to prevent an attack. During the winter of 1889, the Kevalinyes advanced to the westward of Cape Seppings and killed a prominent Tigara native. As soon as the news reached Point Hope an armed party started out to avenge the murder, but did not dare advance beyond Cape Thompson. At no place are hostilities continuous. There are always seasons of civility, when they visit each other for the purpose of trade.

TRIBES DYING OUT.

The other coast tribes between Point Hope and Point Barrow have been cut down in population, so as to be almost obliterated. The Kook-povoros of Point Lay have only three huts left; Ootookas of Icy Cape one hut; Koogmute has three settlements of from one to four families; Sezaro has about eighty people.

POINT BARROW.

Ootkeavie, at Cape Smyth, 8 miles from Point Barrow, has a population of about 360, and is the largest permanent settlement in Eskimo Alaska. Its people are drawn from all portions of the territory north of Behring Strait, being attracted there by the favorable situation of the place for catching whales and killing deer.

Noowoo (Nuwük), on the extreme end of Point Barrow, has a population of less than 100. Its people are native to the soil, and are undoubtedly the only true relics of the old stock of Eskimos within the bounds of Alaska.

THE NOOATOKS.

The Nooatoks, originally called Napakato Mutes (timber people), began their tribal existence in the timbered country at the headwaters of the Nooatok River. Like the herds of Genghis Khan they have moved east and west, occupying as much of the territory as suits their purpose.

The golden age of the Eskimos, as a whole, was probably two hundred or more years ago, before they felt the pressure of southern savages. Of individual tribes the Tigaras were at the height of their power about 1775, the Kaveas about 1800, Kinigans 1860, Ootkeavies about 1870.

The Nooatoks just now are in the ascendant and promise to overrun the whole country. Around Point Barrow they have obtained a footing; at Point Hope they are gradually accomplishing the same end by selling children to the Tigaras.

They are also gradually working in their dialect among the old Eskimo stock.

The principal dialects of Arctic Alaska are :

Old Eskimo :

- (1) Oomojek, Cape Tchaplín and St. Lawrence Island.
- (2) Kokmaleet, tribes between Icy Cape and Point Barrow.
- (3) Kogmollik, MacKenzie River.

Mixed Eskimo :

- (1) Kavea, Lake region back of Port Clarence.
- (2) Kinegan, Cape Prince of Wales and Diomedes.
- (3) Nooatok, Kotzebue Sound inland to Arctic Ocean.

A few words will serve to show the variations of the language in different localities.

SUN : Shikinya, St. Lawrence Islands and north coast of Alaska.

Mersuk, Diomedes and Kavea.

MOON : Abaoctuk, St. Lawrence Sound.

Amalituk, Diomedes.

Amaloctuk, Nooatok.

Amala, MacKenzie River.

The language is difficult to understand on account of there being so many synonymous terms. As many as six different names have been found for the same thing in a single tribe. What may be the traditional name of an object in one locality may be the common appellation in another.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

There are three types observable among the Arctic Eskimos of Alaska. The tall, cadaverous natives of Kangoot, Seelawik, Koovuk, and Kikiktowruk, on Kotzebue Sound, who live on fish, ptarmigans, and mar-mots. They always have a hungry look, and habitually wear a grin of fiendish glee at having circumvented an adverse fate. There is a tendency among these people to migrate north.

Then there is the tall, strongly knit type of the Nooatoks, a gigantic race, of a splendid physique that would be remarkable in any part of the world.

Rugged as the mountains among which they live, vigorous and courageous, they stop at nothing but the impossible to accomplish a desired end. Their food supply is the reindeer, mountain sheep, ptarmigans, and fish. There are many of the coast natives of this type, but they lack the healthy glow and the indomitable will of the Nooatoks.

The third type is the short, stumpy one, probably that of the old Eskimo before the admixture with southern tribes, now found on the Arctic coast. Whale, seal, and deer meat are their food staples.

The Eskimos have coarse, black hair, some with a tinge of brown. Many of the coast people of both sexes are bald from scrofulous eruptions. Males have the crown of the head closely cropped, so that reindeer may not see the waving locks when the hunter creeps behind bunch grass. They have black eyes and high cheek-bones. The bones of the face are better protected from the severity of the climate by a thicker covering of flesh than southern races.

Among the coast people the nose is broad and flat, with very little or no ridge between the eyes. The adult males have short mustaches, and some of the elder ones (more noticeable in the interior) have rough, scraggy beards. Generally their beard is very scant, and most of them devote otherwise idle hours to pulling out the hairs. All have good teeth, but they are subjected to severe usage, being used for pinchers, vises, and fluting-machines. The teeth are employed in drawing bolts, untying knots, holding the mouth-piece of a drill, shaping boot-soles, stretching and tanning skins. When they become uneven from hard usage they are leveled off with a file or whetstone. A woman at the age of forty who has done her share of the house-work generally has her front teeth worn down so low that they are useless for mechanical purposes.

ORNAMENTATION.

At any time from sixteen to twenty-two years of age the male natives have their lower lips pierced under each corner of the mouth for labreta.

When the incision is first made, sharp-pointed pieces of ivory are put in. After the wound heals the hole is gradually stretched to half an inch in diameter. Some of the poorer natives wear labrets made from cannel coal, ivory, common gravel, and glass stoppers obtained from ships, which they shape for the purpose. All who can obtain them have agate ones. One labret is nearly always plain, and shaped like a plug hat, with the rim inside the mouth to hold it in; the other has a white washer an inch and a half in diameter just outside the lip, held in place by a nut of turquoise fastened to the end of the labret by petroleum pitch from Icy Reef or spruce gum from the Nooatok. It is not known where they have obtained the turquoise or the porcelain-like washer. The natives say they have always been in the country, and have been handed down by successive generations. Some of the old men who have made a good record as whalers tattoo their cheeks; some of the designs are triangular, an inch long, with one point intersecting the corner of the mouth. Another kind is a rectangular bar an inch and a half long, extending from the corners of the mouth toward the ears.

Some of the girls have their ears pierced just back of the lobe, where it is thinnest. They wear ivory ear-rings, some of which are carved with plain figures, while others have a setting of turquoise. Some of them have a string of beads extending from one ear-ring to the other, suspended under the throat. There are rare instances where the Cape Prince of Wales girls wear turquoise beads suspended to the cartilage of the nose between the nostrils. Tattooing the chin among the women is general, and it is kept up, so they say, because it has always been the custom. At the age of six one narrow perpendicular line is drawn down the centre of the chin, powdered charcoal being used in coloring. At about twelve years of age the line is broadened to a half of an inch, and a narrow line drawn parallel to it on each side. Sometimes the tattooing is delayed till the child has grown up and has the work done to suit herself, either with the narrow line, the broad line, or three lines. Some of the Kangoot women on the south side of Kotzebue Sound have been noticed with two narrow lines on each side of the broad one, and there are rare instances where the tattooing has been delayed till the birth of the first child or even longer. The women all have remembrance blotches tattooed on their wrists or back of the hands. The women wear their hair in braids, except when it is tied in two loose locks just below the ears. Mackenzie River women wear the hair in two rolls forward of the ears, hanging down, and a small pig-tail behind.

DRESS.

Clothing for men consists of knee-breeches, belted at the loins, a loose-fitting cloak trimmed around the bottom, and the hood with wolf or wolverine, or a blending of both, a pair of stockings and a short-legged pair of boots with seal-skin soles. In winter two suits are worn, the inner suit with the hair next to the body and the other with the hair

Those south of Port Clarence (Cape Douglas) and those north of Point Hope wear shoulder-straps of different-colored furs trimmed with wolverine. Point Hope natives put little white tanned seal-skin tassels around the top of their summer boots, and others do not. The old Eskimos at Point Hope and Point Barrow fashion their boot-soles high, and cut out the upper in one piece, and sew their water-proof boots and mittens without a welt, while the Kavea and Diomedes make the sides of their boot-soles low, have the upper in two pieces, and sew with a welt. Old people often have portions of their clothes made of duck-skins, which are said to be tough and warm. All of them like to have civilized clothing for summer or indoor wear, which can be washed, so as to keep down vermin. The difference between the dress of men and women is that the latter have their boots, stockings, and pantaloons all in one garment. The cloaks of all females have at the back of the neck a fullness, for carrying infants. These cloaks come down below the knees and are gored out at the sides up to the hips, making the front look like an apron.

The chief employment of the women in winter is dressing skins and making clothes.

When the snow begins to melt in the spring, they cease manufacturing, and only repair or fit a garment when absolutely necessary.

CHARACTER.

They are intelligent beyond what might be expected of them, and have good natural abilities. They are quick in providing ways and means in cases of emergency. They are also anxious to adopt the methods of white people when they can do so to advantage to themselves. Some of them carve with a knife on pipe-stems, or drill bows made of mastadon or walrus ivory, pictures illustrating events in the life of the artist, tribal history, or festal occasions. There are instances where they have communicated with each other by means of pictures carved on wood or ivory. In their drawings they have no idea of the perspective, and instead of drawing from nature they are more apt to incline to the grotesque and hideous, just as the fancy may seize them. Our pictures are unintelligible to them, unless they are distinctly ludicrous.

They know no other motive than that of selfishness. Anything they part with is with the expectation of a double remuneration in the near future. Any promise of reward next year they deem idle talk and are unwilling to understand it. Everything is right if it coincides with their wishes, and everything wrong if it is contrary. Any man may have their friendship if he can pay for it; otherwise he must take the consequences, good or bad. The Eskimos have been proverbially honest and truthful in their dealings. Aside from forcible appropriations they rarely steal anything, unless it is some small trinket of very little value. Any little article stolen may be easily traced, as it is not in their nature to conceal a theft or keep a secret. Up to this time there has been no white man among them who can equal them in hunting, fishing, sealing, and shore-whaling. Judging from their stand-point they say the white man is "ilualok" (unfit for anything), nor have they any respect or veneration for anything pertaining to the whites.

CUSTOMS.

The Eskimos on going to bed strip off all their clothing and huddle together under reindeer-robos. The males scarcely ever wash their face and hands, and their bodies never. All births and deaths take place in out-houses.

Women carry their young astride their backs. The child is held in place by a strap passing under its thighs and around over the mother's breasts.

Children are given from two to six names, but none of them are those borne by the father or mother, but are those of ancestors or respected relatives. The literal meaning of the names are stone, foxes of different kinds, seals of all varieties and sizes, birds, animals, parts of animals, of birds, of fishes, or of the body, sections of the country, winds, tides, motion, fast or slow, decorative articles, and names compounded in an expressive way, as Amok Tigara, the she-wolf of the Tigaras.

Idiots and partially demented persons are permitted to live, contrary to what might be expected of these people; but the unfortunate wretches are only fed on refuse food, and if clothed at all are only given old worn-out garments. Fortunately only an occasional idiot is to be found.

COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE.

Girls after they have reached puberty, at about thirteen years of age, have no one to protect them. Neither father, mother, or brother will raise a hand to ward off a ruffian who would outrage them. Eskimo girls are naturally modest, shy, and of a retiring disposition, and it is a severe shock to them to be pounced upon as a hawk would grab a dove. They often fight furiously until their clothes are cut or torn from them and they are beaten insensible. After a while they will not resist so heroically. Though tears fall like rain, the male Eskimo, youth or middle-aged, never relents. When a girl has finally taken a husband she is not often molested. An Eskimo begins his courtship by making the girl presents of food delicacies, such as deer breast, tongues, and seal liver. Then he has as fine a cloak made as his resources will permit, which is intended for the girl. Should she accept and put it on, he has won; but she often hesitates, sometimes rejecting all advances or preferring some one else. Should the latter be the case the man begins a cruel siege. She is waylaid and harassed upon every occasion. The persecution is kept up for days and months before the man gives up, leaving the field for the next comer. When a couple does mate, the relation is scarcely ever permanent. Before they become settled they may have had a dozen or more matrimonial ventures. Women are inclined to be true to their husbands, and probably would be if the men did not insist on exchanging wives for a season, or prostituting them for a revenue to whalemén.

Women are kept in the huts a month after confinement, and are not allowed to enter any other house than their own till the season, summer or winter, is over. Maternal cares and drudgery make their lives such a burden that they often destroy their unborn offspring. Some of them do this secretly, and if it is found out by their husbands they are beaten till insensible, then thrown out of the house. Women who have been badly treated have hanged themselves. This last winter (1889) a Point Hope man, jealous of his wife, whom he had taken from the Nooatoks the summer before, hammered and cut her up with a knife. Despairing of life or liberty, in the night, during a raging blizzard, she fixed a noose around her neck, hitched some dogs to the hauling-cart, started them up, and was dragged to death.

Here are some of their love songs, in which I have preserved the meaning:

OKANITOO (LITTLE WOMAN).

Oh! Okanitoo! This I'll do
To win your noble heart;
In command of a magic wand
I'll cleave the mountains apart.

There, below the surface of snow,*
By the eternal hunting-ground,
A hut I'll build of rarest guild,
Where love may ever abound.

On wings I'll rise to the leaden skies
And drag the Aurora down,
Its trembling bars with glistening stars,
To make thee a wedding gown.

The rainbow, too, of varied hue,
For a bonny belt I'll bring,
The new moon trap, the ends I'll lap,
And weld thee a finger ring.

I'll hunt the hare, I'll fight the bear,
And banish the wolves for good;
Whales and deer, and seals I'll spear,
We'll never want for food.

When this is done, I'll moor the sun,
And turn the blizzard away;
The winter's blast forever past,
We'll live in endless day.

* The Eskimos' happy hunting-ground is below the ground, out of the cold.

KAVANA.

My little Kavana, my pretty Kavana,
 Higher mounts the sun in its aerial ride,
 And winter's darkness will soon be gone,
 Will you be now my own bonny bride?
 Not for a day, but forever and a day!
 I know very well I have loved a host
 (And who has not, I'd like to know)
 Of beautiful girls up and down the coast.

My dearest one, my beloved one,
 Very soon the snow birds will be here,
 Perhaps with the next southerly gale,
 To usher in our Arctic New Year.
 Accept me do, for I love you true;
 You "have hunted and mated with dozens before,
 And plighted" you say "to another man;"
 Then we are even, why hesitate more?

My darling girl, my own dear girl,
 We'll soon leave our underground home,
 To pitch our tent on some inland creek,
 Once more my dear, will you, will you come?
 What! mine at last, suspense is past,
 Mine you are for woe or for weal,
 Now, my wife, I'm hungry as a gull,
 Off with your cloak, and skin that seal.

AHKETUCKY.

Ahketucky, tucky tah,
 Ahketucky, tucky tah,
 Ooninyah has a handsome face,
 Lovely form, and winsome grace;
 An arrant flirt, a coquette,
 Easy to court, but hard to get.
 Ahketucky, tucky tah,
 Ahketucky, tucky tah,

Allungow is a slave to work,
 Toil all day and never shirk;
 But any girl that I wed
 Works, or I break her head.
 Ahketucky, etc.

Rechona, by angels given
 From the fairest band in heaven,
 Beautiful nymph, blessed ever,
 Adore always, marry never.
 Ahketucky, etc.

Okpokto, of noble mind,
 Honest, upright, and kind,
 Exalted, incomparable virtues;
 But goodness brings no revenues.
 Ahketucky, etc.

Anakcho is a little ghoul,
For plunder yields her very soul,
And she shall be the wife
To share my lot in life.
Ahketucky, tucky tah,
Ahketucky, tucky tah.

POLYGAMY.

Polygamy is hereditary. If a father has a plurality of wives the sons also have an equal number, without regard to wealth or ability to support them. Many natives have two wives; there are rare instances of a man having three wives, and Owtonowrok of Tigara had five wives at the time of his death. He had previously killed one, and scarcely a day passed that he did not club or carve one or more of them. At his death the first wife took possession of all the property, to be held in trust for her eldest boy, twelve years of age, to the exclusion of all the other children or relations.

DISEASES.

The natural bodily ailments of the Eskimos are scrofula, diphtheria, bronchial, and pulmonary diseases. Many men are affected with sore eyes and partial blindness, brought on by the excessive refraction of the sun's rays on the white surface of snow during the months of April, May, and June. Left to themselves the Eskimos would have continued to battle successfully against these disorders; but the white people introduced syphilis among them. This has been a blight that has almost swept some of the coast tribes out of existence, and bids fair to depopulate the whole Eskimo country. The Nooatoks, being an inland tribe, have been comparatively free from it until lately, but the blight has now begun to affect them also. They might have had immunity much longer had they not forced their way to the sea-coast, where they could have communication with the whale-ships. They now come in boats to Point Hope, cross the mountains to Point Lay and vicinity, and go in large numbers every summer to Point Barrow.

According to an Eskimo's idea there is no wrong in adultery, especially among themselves, and it is correct with whalers if there is a consideration; consequently, it does not take much time to scatter the germs of disease among a whole people.

The Diomedé natives are not given to promiscuous intercourse with whalers. The Oomoojeks, of Cape Tchaplín, Siberia, called a halt some years ago before it was too late.

The Kinégans, of Cape Prince of Wales, and the Kotzebue Sound tribes are not badly corrupted yet; but on the north coast there is the grossest abandon. The moral status of the Eskimos is very low, not above that of the brutes. The only thing they have been known to decry has been that of mating with blood relations. There are instances, however, of brother and sister, parent and child, while that of uncle and niece is quite common.

All their songs, stories, and traditions are of a ribald nature. In fact, obscenity is flagrant everywhere. The knowledge they have gleaned from white people has been from a commercial stand-point. Moral ideas have not yet reached them. Satisfaction of personal desires without regard to consequences has hardened them in their ways of iniquity.

People when stricken with what is thought to be a fatal illness are carried out to the out-house, where, if they do not die according to their expectations, they request some one to kill them, and their wish is complied with by an unutkoot (seer), who stabs them with a knife either in the breast or temple; the knife is then buried by the unutkoot. Pieces of graphite or other black stones are placed on the eyes of the deceased, the body is wrapped up in reindeer-skins, and carried out for immediate burial, the head always being placed to the eastward. The body later on is usually placed in a crude box, and is generally left on the ground, though it is sometimes placed on stilts or a frame. Four days after a death the family remain in mournful idleness, and are not allowed to enter another house until the expiration of one moon. Just after a burial the natives walk around the body, then form a ring and drop stones down through their cloaks, after which they file away homewards. Just before the whaling season the Point Hope women are made to carry a piece of whale blubber out to the cemetery and place it on the grave of a deceased whaling relative. That the woman may not neglect the duty through timidity, a man goes along after her carrying a club. Men not having a wife, sister, or mother, or other woman dependent upon them carry the meat themselves. The bodies of people who die during the whaling season are cut open, and any pieces of whale blubber found in the stomach are thrown into the sea.

SHAMANS.

Unutkoots are the seers or medicine men, and are divided into seven degrees. The vocation is hereditary, as far as a son or a daughter may mentally or physically be able to acquire the knowledge. They are graded according to their knowledge of spiritualism, ventriloquism, feats of legerdemain, and general chicanery.

An unutkoot of the seventh degree claims to be immortal; that his vision and knowledge extend beyond that of the world, to that of the spirit life; that he can not be killed or even wounded. Those of this grade are often heard of but never met with. Sixth grade unutkoots may be wounded but not killed. Those of lesser grades are less pretentious; they go into trances, during which the spirit leaves the body, roams about the other world, communicating or treating with other spirits.

Sickness is supposed to be manifestations of evil spirits or devils, which have taken possession of or located themselves in the body.

An unutkoot of the higher grades in treating a patient darkens the room or waits until night; then in the presence of the assembled house-hold he begins operations; he takes his drum, made of walrus bladder stretched over a hoop, strikes it against a stick, making a doleful sound, during which time he alternately commands and exhorts, exciting loud and fervent ejaculations from the assembled people. At first the performance is mournful, but the unutkoot soon warms up and the performance becomes livelier. He winds up each peroration with a questionable glance at the audience, as if to elicit approval; then the responses become more in keeping with a hilarious entertainment, such as "good boy," "go it Tommy," etc.

In the next act he removes the patient's clothing, breathes upon and sucks the parts affected; then bringing his powers of ventriloquism into play, he pretends to carry on a conversation with invisible spirits. Again the drumming and incantations are gone through with. Suddenly all noise ceases; then he flips his right hand behind him, throwing little pebbles on the floor or ground, so as to imitate the sound of an animal scurrying away. The patient is then told that the devil is gone. If it is only a slight illness or mental depression, their faith is so great that the afflicted one gets well anyhow.

In treating rheumatism, swellings from fractures, or syphilis, in addition to the incantations they fearlessly use a knife in lancing, always cutting into the part affected, where they insert a goose-quill to let out blood or pus. They cut deep, without regarding the state of the wound or whether it is ready to be lanced or not. Using no anæsthetic and carving deliberately with a knife that is not remarkable for its sharpness, the patient endures the most intense agony, his screams being heard all over a village.

In dealing with children an unutkoot wears a mask and howls in a disguised voice to scare or divert their minds. The performance being over he takes his drum, goes around a house, chanting and beating an accompaniment, and describing a magic circle, to keep prowling devils away.

There are women unutkoots, but none of a high degree.

Eskimos who are not unutkoots use a stick 4 or 5 feet long, one end of which is held against the instep of a patient, while they chant in anxious efforts to banish or appease the tormenting devil.

Some of the tricks of legerdemain by which the unutkoots mystify their people are apparently driving a knife into their bowels without making a mark; taking a marked bead in their hand, showing it to the audience, toss it carelessly out into the snow, and later on remove what appears to be the same bead from some man's ear; they take a piece of twine, cut it into two pieces 2 inches long, open the mouth to show that it is empty, put in the bits of twine, a piece at a time, chew them up, then, after much heaving of the chest, draw forth from the throat the twine in its original length.

RELIGIOUS BELIEFS AND SUPERSTITIONS.

Eskimos are believers in ghosts. They also believe in the transmigration of souls, that spirits return in animals, winds, rocks, ice, and water, that they are evil, angry, or good, as the elements may be favorable or unfavorable, and that they can be appeased by hoodoo rites if the performer is sufficiently versed in occult sciences. Childless women, it is claimed, can not return to the surface of the earth after death. To change the wind, for instance, they chant, drum, and howl against it, build fires, shoot against it, and as a last resource fire the graves of the dead. Tribes put hoodoos on each other by ceremonial dances and howling. The hoodoo of total destruction upon neighbors is the building of a fire within sight of those coming under their displeasure. Tribal relations are severed by making a fire outside and burning all ornaments or disguises used in ceremonial dances, such as raven skins, eagle tails, deer horns, and masks. Tribes that are hoodooed answer by a return hoodoo, but with families and individuals it is different. Outlawed by their tribe or relations, they become discouraged, hopeless, and gloomy, and literally "go off and die." In whaling, a husband is hoodooed if his wife is confined within three months of the whaling season, or a death hoodoos the whole family till the boat in which they intended to work gets a whale; then if the same boat gets another whale the women folks are released from the hoodoo and may go out on the ice.

Seals when brought home are offered a drink of water; a little of it is then poured on the seal's nose, and the rest thrown into or toward the sea. The same custom is observed toward the white grampus (beluga de mer) and whales when killed and brought alongside the ground ice. Eclipses of the moon create the greatest consternation and almost paralyze the people with fear. Arctic earthquakes having been coincident with eclipses of the moon, they say that an eclipse is the shadow of the earth being piled up and shaken. All the unutkoots in a village will howl and drum till it is passed, claiming that they have driven the thing away. Among the Nooatoks all hands rally around a pair of buckhorns, form a circle, and march around to the music of drums and wild chants till the eclipse is off. One old Eskimo described a calm as being a struggle between spirits of the wind from opposite directions.

FESTIVITIES.

Festal occasions are early in December, when they have a kind of harvest-home, entertainments being given every day by each hut in succession, with an evening dance in the assembly house. A day will be devoted to whales, another to reindeer, others to seal, their whale-boats, sleds, husbands, sweethearts, and wives. This festival is kept up until the whole program is completed or some one dies through exhaustion in dances of endurance.

The next is that of good-cheer, in June, when they quit whaling and exchange presents, give scraps to the poor, and toss each other up in blankets. Another season of gaiety is when the representatives of different tribes meet at the summer rendezvous for the purpose of exchanging commodities. Dancing, foot-races, and wrestling matches are indulged in. Both sexes join in games of polo, foot-ball, and tag. In summer girls toss sandstone balls with their hands, two balls with one hand, or three balls with both hands. In winter they toss an ice-ball with their feet, keeping it from touching the ground for hours at a time; sometimes they toss it from one to another. Sometimes the exercise makes their feet so sore that they tie a reindeer-skin pad across the top of the foot.

In December, 1888, a little Kavalinye girl, when every arrangement had been made for her taking a husband, begged one day more of freedom. Taking her ice-ball she tossed it throughout the short gloomy day till it was too dark to see, unmindful of the cutting wind and drifting snow.

HUNTING.

The primitive methods of taking game were:

(1) Reindeer, with bows and arrows; rawhide snares secured among the dwarf willows that line the creeks; great brushwood corrals in the timbered country, where herds were driven to be slaughtered; chasing them with kyaks and spearing them to death while crossing lakes or lagoons; latterly, chasing herds of deer with dogs, after the fawns are dropped into the rivers and rushing torrents, where the fawns are drowned.

(2) Seal.—With nets suspended under blow-holes, or spearing them when they put their heads into the blow-holes.

(3) Walrus.—They are speared first and then lanced.

(4) Whales.—Striking them with spears to which 20 fathoms of walrus line is attached, with three seal-skin pokes or air-bags tied to it. These pokes keep the whale from sinking while the natives get around it with their boats, lance and worry it to death.

(5) Birds.—Ptarmigans are caught with little nooses set among dwarf willows and with nets staked down into the snow, into which they are driven. Lapland larkspur are caught with tiny nooses made of whale-bone thread. Little auks, puffins, and crow-bills are caught with nets suspended over cliffs. Ducks, geese, and brants are brought to the ground by means of ivory or bone balls tied together with sinew thread, thrown into flocks, where they wind around the necks of the birds.

(6) Foxes are caught with dead-falls or automatic nooses set in holes in the snow. The fox in pulling at the bait draws the halter around his own neck, until, alarmed, he surges back and is strangled.

(7) Lynx they run down till close enough to shoot.

The primitive ways of taking reindeer have been abandoned, except under favorable circumstances among the Nooatoks. Since the introduction of fire-arms the reindeer are too scary to be approached with bows and arrows.

The natives depend on reindeer for all their clothing and bedding, and particularly for tents and houses. The Alaskan Eskimos north of Behring Strait kill about fifteen thousand annually. Many of the natives have adopted American methods of taking whales, in a modified way. From Cape Prince of Wales to Point Barrow they get about thirty whales annually of all sizes. The whalers have almost eliminated the walrus from their food supply. Of seals they get about twenty thousand annually. Like the deer, they are killed with repeating-rifles, of which the natives have the latest and best patterns—Winchester 45-70, 45-60, and 44-50. Hotchkiss's, Marlin's, and Kennedy's express and telescope rifles are also met with. There is scarcely a male Eskimo over twelve years of age who does not own one or more repeating-rifles. They receive annually from the ships $30,000 worth of arms, ammunition, muslin, and flour, at San Francisco prices, in exchange for their furs and whalebones. As there is much rivalry between different traders, the natives receive full valuation for their products.

DRESSING SKINS.

When the snow has whitened the ground, and the streams are frozen over, the women begin dressing skins.

First they dry and scrape the skin, removing the fat; then it is moistened and put under pressure several hours, when it is taken out and wet with warm water as it is scraped. This done, it is thrown over a line to dry; then as it is scraped it is sprinkled with chalk or any kind of white rock pulverized, which when done leaves the skin soft and white. The best working-women can dress two reindeer-skins for ordinary purposes within twelve hours, but a fine job requires three days for one skin. Sometimes the skins before being made up are dyed a dark brown with a decoction of alder bark, obtainable south of the Chapomeakarook Mountains.

DWELLINGS.

The coast natives have fixed villages of underground houses where they live in winter. In summer they scatter out in different parts of their hunting-grounds or go to the different places where the natives meet to exchange articles of trade. During these excursions they live in muslin or deer-skin tents.

The Nooatoks have no fixed abode of underground houses, but live in huts framed with spruce poles covered with reindeer skins. In winter the hut is deeply covered with snow. In the latter part of May, when the snow begins to thaw, they take out their effects and pitch a tent on the surface of the snow. As soon as there is a bare spot of ground the tent is removed to it. The Nooatoks, like the wolves, follow up the reindeer in their migrations and prey upon them, stopping in one place only so long as the food supply lasts.

BOATS.

Eskimo oomeaks (open boats) have a frame-work of spruce covered with split walrus hides, sea-lion skins, or white grampus skins; the latter is not used if sea-lion or walrus skins are obtainable, as it is rather thin. The Behring Strait and north coast boats are generally 24 feet long with 5 feet beam, and have a carrying capacity of 15 persons and 500 pounds of freight.

Those of Kotzebue Sound average about 35 feet in length and 6 feet in width. They have a carrying capacity of 20 persons and 1,000 pounds of freight, or 3,000 pounds of merchandise and a crew of six men. There are exceptional boats built on the Sound that are as much as 42 feet over all. In crossing Kotzebue Sound or Behring Strait the natives sew on bulwarks of sea-lion skins a foot high to keep the water from dashing in.

NOTE ON ESKIMO BIBLIOGRAPHY.

BY SHELDON JACKSON,

United States General Agent of Education in Alaska.

A very complete "Bibliography of the Eskimo Language" has been compiled by Mr. James C. Pilling, and published by the Bureau of Ethnology, Washington, D. C. Whoever examines its pages must be impressed with the large number of persons who have unpublished manuscripts, containing from a score to a few hundred words; the large number of printed reports of Arctic explorations, which contain a partial list of words and phrases; and the fact that there is not a single comprehensive English-Eskimo vocabulary in print, and accessible to teachers and others, among the Alaskan Eskimos.

Among the most important in the past are—

Dr. Benjamin S. Barton's Vocabulary of the Greenlander's (from Cranz). 8vo; pages, 132. Pub. Philadelphia, 1798.

Eskimaux and English Vocabulary, compiled by Capt. John Washington, R. N., and published by order of the lords commissioners of the admiralty for the use of the Arctic Expedition in Search of Sir John Franklin. Oblong 12 mo. 160 pages. London. 1850.

English-Aleutian Dictionary prepared by Stephen N. Buynitzky, and published by the Alaska Commercial Company. San Francisco, 1871. 8 vo. 13 pp.

The above are out of print.

The most recent vocabulary that is available is that of Lieut. P. H. Ray, in the Report of the International Polar Expedition to Point Barrow. 4°. Washington, D. C., 1885.

This volume gives 711 words and 307 phrases, as used by the Eskimo at Point Barrow.

Perhaps the most important contribution to the Eskimo language is in process of preparation by L. M. Turner, in his observations made in 1882-1884, and will be published in connection with the Signal Service of the U. S. Army.

It will contain a vocabulary of the Koksoagmyut of over 7,000 words; the Unalit of Norton Sound, 3,000 words; the Malimyut, Norton Sound, 250 words; and the Unalashka-Alyut Dictionary of 1,900 words.

In the above vocabulary the words are spelled phonetically, letters being given their natural English sounds; k is substituted for c, except in ch, and k takes the place of q. Where g occurs it has the hard sound, as in "gas." — (N) is for Point Hope and North Coast; — . . . (B), Point Barrow; .. — (D), Diomedes and Cape Prince of Wales; — . — (K), Lake region back of Port Clarence; — . — . . . — (Kev), rivers between Novatok and Point Hope; — . — ' ' ' ' (KP), Point Lay.

The vocabulary is the result of four years' study and practice, one year with natives alone, when no English word was heard. It has been re-written and corrected every four months.

JOHN W. KELLY, 1885-1889.
